At Unbound we’re consistently inspired by the dedication of our sponsors. But it must be said that your steadfast support during the past year has been more than inspiring. It’s provided a lifeline of hope.

COVID-19 created difficulties for all of us, yet you’ve continued to generously support Unbound’s work. We never take that support for granted, especially now when the need is so great for the families we serve, most of whom have been severely limited in their ability to earn a living during the pandemic.

Fortunately, we’ve been able to respond to the crisis. In 2020, with direct cash transfers we provided families with immediate access to needed funds, plus we sent significant additional support for pandemic relief.

Still, while so far we’ve been able to maintain a high level of service, we know the path ahead will be steep. Acquiring new sponsors has become a major challenge during the pandemic, which makes the support of our current sponsors even more important.

Unbound and the families we serve rely on you, and we hope this stewardship report helps show you the positive difference you’re making. As always, it reflects our commitment to the responsible management of the funds you so generously entrust to us.

Thank you for your continued support and for the vital role you play in bringing hope to hardworking families around the world. They are deeply grateful and so are we.

Thank you for your generous support.

HOW WE WORK

We believe the surest path out of poverty is a self-directed one. Individuals and families participating in our programs determine how they’ll use financial resources to meet their immediate needs and long-term goals. Along the way, they receive critical support and encouragement from the Unbound community.

SPONSORSHIPS

At year’s end, 288,867 children, youth and elders had the support of a sponsor through Unbound. Sponsored individuals and their families have resources and a support network to meet their immediate needs and begin forging their paths out of poverty.

Sponsorship provides a platform for a one-to-one, personal relationship to develop through financial support and correspondence. Over time, a special bond can form as a child, youth or elder and their sponsor “walk together” to make a positive difference in each other’s lives.

PERSONALIZED BENEFITS

Sponsored individuals and their families have flexibility to use their sponsorship benefits for what they need most. About 94% receive their benefits through cash transfers. With the support of social workers and other local staff, families set goals and create budgets for how they’ll use sponsorship support. They typically focus on their children’s education, but they may choose to use funds for food, housing, medical care, developing livelihoods or other needs.

Cash transfers have been a lifeline for families during the COVID-19 pandemic. Food vendors, drivers, day laborers and others earning their living in the informal economy saw their jobs shut down or significantly restricted. Many used their Unbound benefits to stay afloat until they could find different work. Some started or adapted a small business to meet local needs arising from the pandemic.

In 2020, Unbound teams conducted 41 local-level evaluations, with many focusing on adapting the program to the quickly evolving context created by the pandemic. Results largely showed the strengths of the cash transfer model in times of economic crisis.

Evaluations in the early months of the pandemic showed food insecurity as an emerging crisis impacting families. In Guatemala, the top three difficulties reported were lack of economic resources, loss of jobs and lack of sufficient food. The flexibility in using sponsorship funds provided families with immediate relief for their most urgent needs.

Evaluations in Guatemala, Mexico, Colombia, Peru and Honduras showed a change in families’ use of benefit dollars from their original plans to purchasing food instead. In Peru, 77% of families who received additional assistance were able to eat three or more meals a day compared to just 33% in a comparison group that did not receive the assistance.

When the pandemic hit, education went online in many parts of the world. Unbound programs report that digital learning has been a major challenge, and some are doing more in-depth surveys to better understand the obstacles faced by sponsored students. In some cases, students have had the option to use additional assistance from Unbound to purchase tools needed to continue studying, such as laptops or internet access.

The COVID-19 crisis has made disparities in internet access more pronounced, especially for students who lack tools for remote learning. Unbound estimates that just 50% of families of sponsored students and 25% of sponsored elders have regular access to a smartphone. Many of those phones include some apps but no internet browsers, or internet access is intermittent.
PARENT GROUPS

Unbound harnesses the collective wisdom of parents, particularly mothers, to make our programs effective and efficient. Mothers groups are the primary way families participate in our programs. Organized and supported by local Unbound staff, these small groups meet regularly to encourage learning and growth in a spirit of collaboration. Many promote entrepreneurship by establishing group savings accounts to offer access to microloans and start-up capital.

There are more than 13,000 mothers groups across the 19 countries served by Unbound. Each group comprises 15 to 30 mothers who are from the same community and have children sponsored through Unbound. The groups help women break a cycle of isolation, gain confidence through leadership opportunities and become more financially independent. Mutual accountability among mothers within the groups ensures they are supported and working to achieve their family and group goals.

While in-person meetings and activities were disrupted in the pandemic, local Unbound teams stayed connected with parent groups by communicating with group leaders and other members who have access to technology. Local teams focused on COVID prevention strategies and used cell phones, free messaging apps, social media platforms, radio broadcasts and other means to pass along important health and safety information to families.

Evaluation results indicate the messages had a positive impact. In Peru, for example, 77% of Unbound families reported practicing three key preventative actions: mask wearing, social distancing and handwashing, compared to a control group in which 60% reported taking these actions. In the study, 48% of families reported learning about the information from the local team’s efforts.
Unbound scholarships make a direct investment in students who want to continue their formal education. The funds bridge a gap in resources needed to cover tuition, books, fees and transportation. In 2020, scholarship grants to Unbound field offices totaled more than $3.6 million. Scholarships were awarded to 9,312 students.

Students in our scholarship program develop as leaders through community service. Scholars volunteer to tutor younger children, organize clubs and activities for the community, teach literacy and health workshops for Unbound mothers groups, plan celebrations for elders, and help with correspondence between sponsored children and their sponsors.

COVID-19 created a disruption in the scholarship program in 2020 as education moved online. Scholarship students were encouraged to use funds for technological needs related to schooling. The required community service component was also adapted to allow for completion of requirements remotely. Many scholars focused on COVID-19 prevention initiatives in the community, while some continued with tutoring assistance and programing to sponsored members using virtual methods.

Former scholars continue to participate in the Unbound community because of the values they took away from the program. Nearly half of Unbound’s global team includes former scholars who have chosen to serve the community after they graduate. It is a testament to the commitment they feel toward the families in our programs.
CRITICAL NEEDS

Natural disasters, health crises and other unexpected setbacks in developing countries take a disproportionate toll on people living in poverty, often destroying any headway families have made in improving their situations. Families and Unbound staff use emergency funding to address needs such as housing repairs, nutrition assistance, rescue equipment and medical support. In 2020, Unbound sent $2.4 million to the field specifically to help families in dire need because of the pandemic, and an additional $370,000 was disbursed for relief and recovery after catastrophic storms.

AGENTS OF CHANGE

Agents of Change is an innovative platform that awards grants to Unbound parent groups to make improvements in their communities. It supports people’s investment in the towns, villages and neighborhoods where their families are rooted, and helps support the kind of stable, safe and life-giving communities where people thrive instead of just survive.

Once a group identifies a common need — a bathroom at a school, streetlights in a dark neighborhood, a well to safeguard a community’s water source — they complete the Agents of Change application, which includes an analysis of projected costs and existing resources as well as a comprehensive plan for completion. Initiatives paused because of the pandemic, however, Unbound did disburse $11,500 in Agents of Change funds in 2020. Initiatives will resume as local conditions and restrictions allow.

“If I did not have sponsorship then it would have been impossible to achieve my aim. It changed my life a lot.”

Planned giving addresses a donor’s wishes to:

- Make immediate or future contributions to benefit a sponsored friend in the Unbound program.
- Give to a specific program such as scholarships or a fund such as critical needs.
- Support the general mission of Unbound.

In 2020, gifts received through planned giving options including estate gifts, stock donations and charitable gift annuities totaled nearly $2.7 million and primarily supported scholarships, urgent needs of families, sponsorship of children and youth, and grants to assist the work of Unbound programs around the world. “I have a deep belief that if we can help to empower the next generation with love and respect for them and their home countries, we will help to save this world. It all starts with the children.”
